War against cancer

The author directs an information and consultation service for people with cancer and their families. To better inform his clients and readers, he travels around the world in search of new or innovative treatments that are clinically available for patients willing to travel. This travel has taken him to Asia, Latin America, most EU countries as well as most regions of the US. In this presentation, he will review his findings in various states and countries, highlighting the use of complementary and alternative medicine (CAM) in various societies. Some of the treatments to be discussed are chronomodulated chemotherapy, antineoplastons, Coley's toxins, sonophotodynamic therapy, Newcastle disease virus vaccine, dendritic vaccine, immune pheresis, etc. The emphasis in the talk will be on clinics he has found that are using hyperthermia, and in particular Oncothermia, as part of their practice.
